COOLIDGE'S FATE
IN CONVENTION
KNOWN SHORTLYState Primaries Will Probably Determine Action of Cleveland Convention.

PENNSYLVANIA WATCHED

By Lawrence Martin

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The presidential mood will show whether Calvin Coolidge will be nominated for President on an early ballot in the Republican National Convention at Cleveland in June.

Beginning with the Wisconsin primaries today the nation will be crowded with primaries and conventions for selection of delegates to that convention. A total of approximately 500 delegates will be selected more than a majority in the convention.

President Coolidge himself will get into action when in April 22 he addresses an assembly of editors in New York. The speech is expected to be his most important political utterance to date.

In the meantime these states will hold primaries: Michigan, April 7; Illinois, April 8; Nebraska, April 8; New Jersey, April 22; Pennsylvania, April 22; Massachusetts, April 29; Ohio, April 29.

In this list there are many states which form a debating ground. Pennsylvania's primary, for instance, is expected to show how strong Prohibition is there with relation to Coolidge.

Ohio, the home of Daugherty and Michigan, the home of Doherty, will be closely watched to gauge the effect on the Coolidge fortunes of the resignation of the two cabinet officers.

To Senator George Watson, Mayor of Pennsylvania has been entrusted the making of the "keynote" speech at the pre-convention campaign which gets into full swing this month.

Representative Coolidge's speech is expected to be a running mate for the election to speak tomorrow in Portland, Me. before state leaders.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—While ball arrangements were being made by Harry F. Sinclair, the Senate oil committee again took up its inquiry today.

Two witnesses who were presumed to know something of the reported deal of oil interests for the Senate majority of the interior at the 1920 Republican National Convention were scheduled to take the stand.

Montaine District Attorney Gordon awarded some official word from Sinclair, indicted yesterday on 10 counts, charging contempt of the Senate in his refusal to answer questions put to him by the investigating committee.

A preliminary hearing to fix the amount of bail is scheduled before Justice Hughes.

Both the government and Sinclair's attorneys want a speedy trial and it is possible that it may be begun before the trial proceedings against the principals in the oil scandal are started before a grand jury here a week from Thursday.

Process servers have yet been unable to reach William H. Thompson, who had charge of the finances in the late Republican campaign. Thompson was scheduled to testify today.

Melcroft Boy Gave Up Life Trying to Save His Sister

Joseph Melcroft, 11 years old, gave his life in a vain effort to save his little sister, Viola, who was one of three drowned at Melcroft Saturday. The bodies of Viola and Andrew Melcroft, 11, have been recovered. The bodies of the other two children were still missing at the time of the rescue.

Abie to swim, Joe managed to get Mary Melcroft, nine, to a place of safety and then attempted to save his sister, Viola. He was carried down with her.

The body of Viola was recovered soon after the tragedy. That of Andrew Melcroft was recovered yesterday, 400 feet from the scene of the drowning.

There will be a double funeral for the children tomorrow at 10 o'clock at St. Raymond's Catholic Church at Melcroft. Burial will be at Mount Pleasant in charge of Priest Director C. B. Brooks.

In a court order read at the opening of court today the jury found for the defendant in the suit of Daniel Connelley against Anne Holliday.

Before the case was under way, by agreement of counsel, a verdict for $10,000 was returned in the suit of Thomas Hess and others against the Uniontown Water Company. The case set into court on an appeal from the verdict of $10,000.

Full Salary for Life, Argentine's
Pension Scheme

BUENOS AIRES, April 1.—Salaries without work—a monetary million—came true in Argentine today.

Under the new pension law, effective this morning, everyone who has been in the public service for 10 years or more is entitled to full salary for life.

Mrs. Clara Pletcher, a witness, who said she lived in North Scotland, had been in the Argentine for 10 years. She said she had been in the Argentine for 10 years and had been in the Argentine for 10 years.

Enclosed with this April 1 bill each full subscriber in Pennsylvania will get a notice stating to what extent the new rate will affect his service. In addition the complete schedule of rates will be on file in all of the business offices of the telephone company.

Coincident with the filing of the new rates the telephone company issued a statement setting forth the reasons for a revision in the rate schedule in the steadily increasing cost of construction and maintenance and investment per telephone required for the purpose.

"The revenue," says the statement, "of making for a slight increase in revenue at this time is to keep the company in a position where it will be able to attract the new capital which will be required to give the people of Pennsylvania the quantity and quality of the telephone service they require."

Better to Follow Farmers' Plan of Saving Daylight;
Get Up Earlier Ourselves

"Put me down as opposed to the adoption of 'daylight saving' regulations for the summer," said a local business man this morning. "I like an extra hour of daylight in the summer as well as any person and I take it by getting up at 5:30 in the morning and working in my garden until time to open my place of business.

"To me it would be decidedly unfair to adopt a regulation that would give me any privilege the exercise of which would inconvenience my neighbor. I have the privilege to get up an hour earlier, just as every other person has and there is nothing to prevent them doing so.

"We have had much to say about our cooperation with the farmers of this section of the county. We all know the daylight saving plan works a very great hardship on them. It would be inconceivable as well as inhumane on our part if we would now subject the farmers to the inconvenience of turning the clock back in the summer months of the year when the farmers are busiest and when their habit is to save several hours of daylight by beginning the day before the sun is up.

"Better, far, would it be for us to follow the farmers' example and get to work earlier ourselves. That will give the golf players and other followers of outdoor sports plenty of daylight in which to secure starlings and pulled from business centers.

Ludendorff Is Acquitted; Hitler
Gets Five Years

By United Press.

MUNICH, April 1.—General Ludendorff was acquitted today of a charge of treason for his share in the emperor's "beer cellar" plot of November, 1923. Adolf Hitler, one of the eight other defendants, was found guilty and sentenced to five years in prison.

Speeches and special police kept the people moving on the streets and broke up all gatherings of two or more, fearful of a nationalist demonstration.

Word that General Ludendorff had been freed was received with enthusiasm.

BESSIE CABLE IS LOSER IN $25,000
HEART BALM SUIT

GREENSBURG, April 1.—A lawsuit filed by Bessie Cable of Greensburg shortly after noon yesterday in the suit of Bessie Cable of Greensburg against Charles W. King, Mr. King had asked that he be made such an order. Mrs. Cable had brought for $25,000, alleging breach of promise.

Mrs. Cable was the chief witness called and after she had told her side of the case, she was cross-examined by the defense. A motion was then made for a non-suit which was granted.

"He (King) promised to marry me the latter part of January, 1923, but he failed to keep his promise," were among the allegations made by Miss Cable on the witness stand.

She told the court and jury that she had been married to John A. Lind in 1914 and that they had one child by their marriage.

It was in 1922 that King, according to Miss Cable's testimony, persuaded her to get a divorce from her husband which was granted on December 21, 1922. The witness stated that after the divorce King made three trips to the house and it was then that he plighted his truth. They were to be married on the first Monday following January 28 but she said that King suddenly ceased his attentions and finally did not come back at all.

On and of Miss Cable said she had known the defendant "pretty well" for nine years. He had not paid court to her during her marriage to John A. Lind, she said, but had awaited until her divorce was granted.

Cross-examination in the case failed to shake Miss Cable materially from her story. She held to her statement that King had promised to marry her and she said that her friends had deserted her when the romance fell through.

King, the defendant, called first to the witness stand and stated that to the best of his knowledge he was worth between $20,000 and $25,000. He denied that his assets were over $100,000.

Mrs. Clara Pletcher, a witness, who said she lived in North Scotland, had been in the Argentine for 10 years. She said she had been in the Argentine for 10 years and had been in the Argentine for 10 years.

LONG DISTANCE
CALLS WILL BEAR
RATE INCREASEIn Connellsville, No Change
Proposed in Local Service Schedule.

HARRISBURG, April 1.—A new schedule of telephone rates affecting certain classes of local service in approximately one hundred exchanges in Pennsylvania and making several changes in long distance rates, was filed with the Public Service Commission late yesterday by The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, to become effective May 1.

No change will be made in the local telephone rates for Connellsville under the new schedule.

Business rates in general in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh will be increased by the new schedule, as will some residence party-line rates in Philadelphia.

The new rates provide a charge of $1.00 for a new installation of a business telephone instead of $2.50, as at present. The rate for a new installation on a residence telephone will not be changed, nor will that for "left in" stations, where a telephone left by one subscriber is taken over by another moving in.

The rates for private branch exchange equipment, private lines, etc., are affected by the new schedule. It also provides that only one directory listing per subscriber shall be free and that additional listings shall be charged for at the rate of 25 cents per month.

Where telephone service has been denied for non payment of bills, there will be a reduction of service charges at the regular polling places of their wards. The registrar will be on hand from 8 to 1 o'clock, 2 to 4 and 7 to 10 to register voters and change party preference for those who wish that.

Persons who were registered last fall need pay no attention to tomorrow's registration unless they wish to have party preference changed.

There is but one day set aside for the spring registration.

STROMBOLI
BELCHES OUT
DESTRUCTIONROME, April 1.—A terrific explosion occurred inside the volcano Stromboli in the Liarri Island group at 3:30 A. M. today, the royal observatory on the mountain reported.

Masses of cinders were blown out, destroying vineyards on the mountain side.

Fifteen persons were injured.

The volcano is spouting such dense clouds of smoke from its crater that those at the observatory are unable to ascertain the extent of the activities.

Persons-to-person rates, under the new schedule, where the distance is more than 30 miles and not more than 125 miles will be increased by amounts ranging from five cents to 15 cents.

Enclosed with this April 1 bill each full subscriber in Pennsylvania will get a notice stating to what extent the new rate will affect his service. In addition the complete schedule of rates will be on file in all of the business offices of the telephone company.

Coincident with the filing of the new rates the telephone company issued a statement setting forth the reasons for a revision in the rate schedule in the steadily increasing cost of construction and maintenance and investment per telephone required for the purpose.

Council Considers Making Change in Parking Ordinance

City council, at its meeting last night, considered bids for a street sweeper, a new fire engine, equipped with a pump, and a police car system but no action was taken. The automobile ordinance, relating to parking was a topic of much discussion and it is likely that a new ordinance will be drafted soon.

A suggestion has been made that parking be permitted on one side of the street one week and the other side the next. This would equalize the parking in front of business establishments. Another reason, for such a suggestion is that the present rule for parking on one side only makes considerable more wear and tear on the white surface on that side of the street.

An ordinance was introduced, creating the position of city electrician, one of the duties of whom will be pole inspection.

Philip Galland and C. B. Frank accepted their appointment as members of a city planning commission.

The mayor of a sewer in Oak street requested by J. J. Evans, was referred to the city engineer.

Purchase of a street sweeper or fire engine were both held over at the suggestion of Councilman C. M. Stone until the $50,000 bond issue is disposed of.

YOUGH DROPS 13 FEET; SETS NEW RECORD AT 20.7Flow Last Night Registered
9.35 Feet; This Morning
It Was 7.80 Feet.

HOMES AGAIN OCCUPIED

The Youghiogheny River, tamed and quiet, is flowing at a level of 7.80 feet today, just 13 feet below the highest point attained in the flood of Saturday afternoon and night. The peak figure, as recorded by P. M. Bull, who takes the river measurements, was 20.75 feet, shortly before midnight Saturday. That figure is a new record for the Yough, at least as far back as any record was ever kept of the flow.

The fall of the waters has been rapid. Beginning in records at the new hours of Sunday morning, the river has come down steadily. Last night's figure was 9.35 feet and this morning it showed a stage of 7.80 feet.

The flood has left considerable wreckage and debris in its wake. Piled along the river banks and on overflowed river properties are heaps of brush, logs, ties, trees, boards and boxes. A deep layer of sediment was also deposited.

The street department was busy this morning cleaning up on the lower end of Sixth street, the paved section of which was inundated for many hours. In some places nearly a foot of mud had settled on the bridges.

With the waters back to a normal stage it is now possible for residents of all homes in those sections to return with safety. Everyone has some loss, however. In the houses closest to the river the same deposit of sediment which covered the streets has been left on the floors and carpets and wall paper have been greatly damaged.

Tons and tons of slag have been dumped in the Baltimore & Ohio road yards here, and the tracks are threatened in that manner. The work was still in progress today, after the whole of yesterday had been devoted to the task.

P. S. C. to Make Complaint Against Bells' New Rates

By United Press.

HARRISBURG, April 1.—The Public Service Commission today directed counsel to prepare formal complaint against the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, protesting against rates filed with the commission last night.

The commission's complaint, it was said, will be served on the company immediately and it is to be answered within 10 days.

The date of the hearing has not been fixed and will depend largely on the petition of other complainants, who are expected to join the commission in an effort to determine reasonableness of the proposed increases.

Up until noon today no complaints other than that of the commission itself, had been filed.

Casparis Plant to Begin Operation in Week or Ten Days

The Casparis Stone Company is preparing to open its plant at Casparis, near Indian Creek, within the next 10 days, and as rapidly as it can be done, the output will be pushed towards capacity. The company is always idle in the winter, it was pointed out by W. H. Casparis, of Columbus, Ohio, president of the stone company, who is here handling the situation.

Locally-operation are begun about March 15, but because of the hard winter and late spring the resumption this year has been delayed.

The company has contracts which insure its operation up to the first of next December, when the usual winter shut-down will probably take place. There will be employment for between 50 and 60 men when the work opens up. This number is not retained at the plant all winter, however, although there is always a working force on hand.

Asked whether he had received any additional orders for bluestone as a result of the flood over the week-end, Mr. Casparis said he had no confirmation of such emergency but that he stood ready to give the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad all he could turn out and if necessary would employ an extra force of men. The regular contract of the company for bluestone will be filled as soon as operations begin.

Two Police Vacancies

The police force is shy one more officer today, yesterday making the end of service by Patrolman Y. M. Stevens, who resigned to become an automobile salesman. Patrolman Charles Nos, who is improving rapidly, is expected to return to duty soon.

RECOGNITION OF THE RIGHTS OF MERCHANTS.

The proposal to change the parking rules so that the two sides of the street shall be used alternately for periods of one month is a belated but not recognition of the rights of those merchants whose places of business have been parked day in and day out for a year or more in and out of the street. It is a recognition of the fact that the merchants on one side of a street under a permanent handicap such as a line of standing automobiles have a right to be recognized as merchants. Other things being equal there is a popular prejudice of habit which inclines the public to park on one side of a street rather than the other. This is a bad practice.
If the opposite, or less traveled, side of a street is made a permanent parking place still further disadvantage the merchants on the other side.
The result is to make the parking rule a permanent handicap to the merchants on the side of the street which is not the more traveled side.

HOW CANDIDATES STAND ON THE ENFORCEMENT.

Candidates for nomination for the several offices to be filled at the November election are being asked, or will be asked before long, to state their position on the enforcement of the law. This is a question which every citizen should know the answer to. It is a question which every citizen should know the answer to.
The candidates who are frank and honest will not hesitate to give a clear cut answer to this question. If opposed to such enforcement there is no reason why they should decline to say so. Indeed, there is every reason why they should candidly declare themselves.
On the other hand, if a candidate is "dry" he owes it to himself and the voters to say so. The people have a right to know the attitude of every candidate on this subject. The tenor of the courts and jury and the public is so steadily tending toward the more rigid enforcement of the law that this is becoming the big issue of the day.
The people are not in the mood to be fooled by candidates who try to carry water on both shoulders by keeping silent on this issue in the hope of pleasing both "wet" and "dry."
If a candidate is not sufficiently conscientious to be unshaken in his position, and frankly state it, they have "no kick coming" if voters refuse to give them their support.

This is the day when some of us are reminded what we are on the other side of present year.

The weatherman did not forget this is April 1.

The rumors, not the Indian creek dem, but again.

The spring freshet ought to be a good introduction to the festivities of

There must be bitter disappointment among the Democratic Congressmen that their plan for cutting another political million by investigating Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and driving him out of the Cabinet has been thwarted.

A Disillusioned Kansan

Now & Monthly.

I am spending the present winter in the South, and am much amused at the attitude of such people as law enforcement. They are much scandalized because the prohibition law is not enforced, but assist in relieving that part of the Constitution which says the negroes shall be permitted to vote.
W. J. Bryan lives in Florida. Ever hear him complain because the negroes of the South are not allowed to vote?

Take More Than a Night.

Johnston Democrat.

Klan members evidently have all the weakness of the race. One who recently ruled over the immaculate and invisible empire has just been fined $100 for a violation of the Klan act.
It takes something more than a night to overcome old Adam in such cases.

saw her and she was not alone with a

American Laws for America

Saturday Evening Post

We have been hearing a good deal lately about what Japan wants, what Italy wants, what Russia wants, and what various other European nations want. Consistent to do about immigration. Aliens in America have also expressed their opinions on the same subject with the greatest freedom.
With every wish not to wound the sensibilities of these proud nations, whose nationals come to America in response to the fortunes of their mother country and their own, we believe that our immigration laws should be written in America by Americans and for Americans.

One of these remonstrances against the Johnson Bill—any, Rumors of Japan or Italy, that alienation of immigrants. And if these Americans crowded into cities like Tokio and Rome, living in congested American quarters and including in these slum communities a goodly number of New York gnomes; carefully preserving their American customs and culture; printing and reading their own journals, producing American Politics and Scandals in their own American language, celebrating the Fourth of July with cannon crackers in the shadow of the Colosseum; carrying the Stars and Stripes in cowboy processions along the Corso; singing The Star Spangled Banner in season and out; competing with and lowering the standard of living; taking over the Italian anticlerical and megalomaniac inventions; crowding the Jews out of the rice and fish business; violating the anti-prohibition laws and bootlegging bottled waters to the population; and finally sending back to America a ballow of hate and revenge, there would be a loud lament along the Aegean and various other seas that would make Byron from the dead. There is not a nation in Europe, not to mention Japan, that would stand for thirty minutes the spectacle of their country being taken over by a foreigner.
If the Johnson Bill is discussion, so much the better. If there is one thing that we need more than any other it is a little discrimination in our immigration policy. Today we are the

Trained for Service

Philadelphia Ledger.

Dr. John M. Thomas, president of the State College, has presented a novel point of view in favor of technical education. If he is right, it means that the technical school is more necessary than ever before.
The American worker has less chance than once had of learning a business in the broadly technical aspect of his work. He must learn by "individual production" in his own workshop. He has been replaced by cooperation. All processes have grown more complex. Therefore, greater knowledge and skill are required by man and woman in their everyday occupations.
Under the old apprentice and journeyman system a boy was bound to his trade and learned its every phase.
At a pinch he could even make his own tools. Factory owners of the last generation often began at the work bench. Today they are more likely to have begun at a technical school. There is too much to learn and too little time to learn it in the modern workshop, where mass production proceeds at breakneck pace and the stop watch is as important as the time clock.
In such a factory the individual is submerged. He may not get wages but wages are no ultimate goal to an ambitious youth. He may perform one operation exceedingly well, but it is not likely that he will ever have the time or the chance to learn all the time of one product. He knows his part of these operations so well, and his fellows know their parts so well that the boss needs to know only the theory and plan on which they are working.

Oats vs. Gasoline

Lafayette Bulletin.

A local resident states that recently on the Lincoln Highway, near Lewisburg, he saw an ancient flower fitted with a double tree and a wagon tongue, with two horses furnishing the locomotive power. The ruins were passed through a slot in the windbreak, and a pair of multi-colored birds, comfortably on a side curtain, hiding the occupants within.
There may be more entities of the kind if gasoline keeps on going up.

HALT IN DECLINE IN SOFT COAL OUTPUT WAS BUT TEMPORARY

Was Decrease of 318,000 Tons During Week March 23, Boshire Coke Showed Slight Gain.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—According to the United States Geological Survey the halt in the decline in the rate of soft coal production was but temporary, and production decreased again in the week ended March 22. The total output, including lignite, coal coked at the mines and local sales, is estimated at 9,309,000 net tons. This was 218,000 tons less than in the week preceding and 1,115,000 tons less than in the corresponding week a year ago.

Production of soft coal during the first 299 working days of the coal year 1923-24 was 628,016,000 tons, as compared with 417,168,000 tons in 1922-23. The present year has exceeded by 29 per cent the average of the three most recent years of depression and is but eight per cent behind the two years of greatest industrial activity.

The production of bituminous coal improved somewhat in the week ended March 22. The total output, as estimated from reports of the coke carters, is placed at 316,000 net tons, against 338,000 tons in the preceding week. Practically the entire increase occurred in Pennsylvania and Ohio. The present rate of output is approximately 18 per cent less than at the corresponding date of 1923, and 31 per cent less than in 1922.

According to The Courier the output in the Connellsville region was 236,840 net tons. Cumulative production to March 22 stood at 2,367,000 tons which was 110 per cent ahead of 1922 and 29 per cent ahead of 1921, but 28 per cent behind 1920 and 1923.

Production by states, compared with the corresponding week last year, was as follows:

State	1923	1922
Pennsylvania and Ohio	2,367,000	2,044,000
West Virginia	17,000	21,000
Alabama, Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia	22,000	24,000
Virginia	10,000	19,000
Colorado and New Mexico	5,000	8,000
Washington and Utah	5,000	8,000
U. S. Total	2,416,000	2,134,000

We did nothing but San Cura and didn't even have a physician and in almost an incredible short time her face was perfectly healed without a scar. It is the finest thing for burns that I have ever seen. It is also used for other things, just lately an infected toe and immediately it was healed—Hattie S. Pitts, 18 Iowa Circle, Washington, D. C. Adam Thompson's Bathtub

The introduction of the first bathtub was made by Adam Thompson, of Cincinnati, in 1842. People came from far and near to see the "new-fangled" contraption. Bathing in winter was an unheard of thing. As soon as Doctors heard of it they predicted rheumatism, inflammation of the lungs, and other serious complications.

Today, Doctors advocate frequent, even daily, bathing. Hotels advertise 1,000 rooms and 1,000 baths. Such is progress.

The bathroom fixtures of today are exquisitely fashioned of china and porcelain. And they are priced to suit every pocketbook. If you are going to install a new bathroom or remodel the old one—get our prices.

Sleeveless Jacquette
Knitted Suit Feature

Tan wool and brown fiber silk are used to make this youthful two-piece knitted costume. The long jacquette is sleeveless.

New Shawl Is Shown in Delicate Shades

Something superlatively beautiful was required to dim the gorgeousness of the Spanish shawl which has had such a conspicuous vogue for two seasons and more. Among the spring styles in novelties is a shawl of fine cashmere with a printed border in floral design. The design is not a floral design, but it is a most feminine and lovely thing.

The new shawl is square with a short fringe of the cashmere border and is shown in several delicate shades of yellow, blue, beige and green though the most attractive is that with an ivory white field and a border of garden flowers in natural colors.

One in which are little roses, pansies, forget-me-nots and touchings of green and black is quality charming. Another shawl of corn yellow has poppies and corn flowers in the border pattern, and on still another are jonquils and small lilies around a field of pale green.

These shawls have made an immediate success and are in great demand among women who will use them over their light gowns. They will surely be equally popular for summer country wear.

Attractive Overblouse
With Short Sleeves

Quite attractive for afternoon wear is an overblouse with short sleeves, like the bathing suit in one with the blouse, giving it the air of a complete frock. The edge of the sleeves, two bands of the embroidery down the front and a circle are all embroidered with gold and green bands on the beige crepe background.

Allover tucked blouses are also used, rocks perpendicular and sometimes edged with a pleat or again in the same effect with ribbon sewed only at one side, the idea copied probably from a model gown very popular last season. Crumpled ribbon—or as the French call it, ruffled—is another manner of trimming seen in the sporty models.

A green muslin cloth model has cut-out motifs, with yellow gold taffeta lining showing through the spaces. The fronts of the blouse are fastened at the neck line and at the bottom only allowing a narrow strip of lining to show between. One large motif is used on each sleeve and at the bottom of the waist in front.

Except in the more elaborate of the overblouses the neck motifs are long and even in some of the satin models the length is retained. A number of how sleeves are gathered into a narrow wristband, giving a loose, easy line above and a few are cut sharply out from the wristband or turned out into a point and again practically the same effect.

Pale Yellow and Green
Among Spring Colors

Pale yellow, green in a wide range of tones and all shades of pink and rose are the colors chosen again and again for lovely frocks of chiffon that the season advances will supplant the more formal velvets and brocades. They possess a springtime freshness and daintiness that is most appealing. Especially lovely are models that exhibit a clever combination of two or three shades of a single color. One unusually beautiful frock has three shades, each a different tone of rose.

How To Keep A Child Healthy

AGENTS and parents alike should know that a child's health is a part of a child's life, but we know better now. The secret is in the food the mother allows the child to eat, and in watching that the digestion occurs regularly, two or three times a day. Mrs. J. Russell of 1914 Havana Ave., Detroit, Mich., writes her family of two young children in perfect health with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Mrs. Russell of 519 Mann Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa., says her family of three children have never been so healthy since giving them Syrup Pepsin.

WHO MAKES THE EASTER TOYS?

Once upon a time there was a little bunny who lived in a great great forest. He was a good bunny who loved not only all the bunnies in the forest but also all the children in the world.
One day when he was hopping about near the edge of the forest he saw a little girl who was crying. A broken doll and who was crying. An the doggie took my doll and sobbed, an "Sister" was it come again for a long, long time.
This was the Papa bunny's own dear old doll and he hopped home very fast to tell it to the other bunnies. Perhaps other doggies have broken and call them Easter presents.
And so all the bunnies set to work and they made many many toys. Perhaps you little girl or boy, in the boy will find one of them. The bunny's most beautiful Easter morning.

EASTER STORY AND SERMON

Joan Turns
An Easter Story

By Marion R. Roegen

"LL right, Elsie, let's have 'The Butterfly' next, brightly now, brilliant, remember you're a butterfly." Miss Martin rose from the piano as was her custom, and walked back and forth across the room as little Elsie blundered on with "The Butterfly." Elsie was afraid of Miss Martin. Every body was. Not that she was ever unkind, indeed quite the contrary. She was always most courteous, but somehow one felt that inside she was all with a very stiff little up her spine which would never allow her to unbind. At the window opposite the piano Joan Martin paused, drew a folded letter from her waist and read again. Not that there was anyone else, Joan or that there ever has been. I am hoping you will understand. It is simply that I feel more and more that we never could be happy together and that our engagement had better be broken now before too much earnestness is aroused. You know how those things are, and—Joan trumped the letter in her hat her long eyes narrowed into two dark slits. She hit her lower lip hard, until it almost bled, and stood for several minutes staring out the window, seeing nothing.

Male finished "The Butterfly" and turned around shyly to hear what Miss Martin would say. But Miss Martin said nothing. She was extremely frightened. There she stood at the window very still and very straight, looking quite as if the table had become entirely rigid. For several seconds she stood thus motionless then she turned as if she were startled. "Very good, very good but it needs more practice. Take the tune slowly over and over. And that will be all today. I'll see you again next Thursday." The words came out so fast that there was something in the matter with Miss Martin today. Why did she say her playing was very good when even Elsie knew it was very bad? And she looked so funny, especially when she said good-by.

Left alone Joan continued to pace up and down the room. The blood was rushing through her veins. Such terrible humiliation for her—so high and aloof. Then to think that the music she had promised to give herself, she had refused her—had refused her. Her head went back like that of a spirited horse and her data clenched tightly until they almost pained the flesh. She was glad there were to be no more lessons that afternoon. It would give her a chance to think what to do.

She would not answer the letter when it was almost Easter and he'd be home to spend the day with his mother. She would see him then. He would be at church and would probably wait for her and take her home, so able with reasons why it would be best for them to break their engagement. She knew Jack Reeves but she would not give him a chance to talk to her.

Easter morning, Joan in a smart new costume, started for the little church where she was both organist and choir leader. Under her arm she carried a large roll of music. It was to be a gala day. Never had there been such an elaborate musical program given in any church in Glenfield. She had practiced every night, determined to not the whole church nation and particularly Jack Reeves. She would put her whole soul into playing that organ. She imagined she could see the effect it would have on him. He would be touched, sorry he had written that note anxious for forgiveness. And then—then would be her chance to freeze him.

She walked down the street with her head high. People spoke to her with a little more than the respect she always commanded. There were frank admiration in their glances for this tall, stunning girl in the tailored blue suit. Joan was not unconscious of the effect she produced and it pleased her enormously. The sidewalks were still wet from the rain of the night before, and splattered with fresh red mud, washed down in little gullies from the lawns. There was a crisp odor of earth in the air that made one keenly aware of the new life that was beginning to stir underground. A typical early spring day! The kind of day that makes one glad one is alive.

The little church was crowded to the doors. Joan walked unhesitatingly to the organ and took her place at the organ. She was like some ancient priestess in the serene arrogance of her bearing. And she played as she had never played before. The choir was in perfect harmony, and the congregation sang with the happy joyousness that only Easter can inspire. It was the kind of thing an organist can rightly feel proud of, and Joan was proud.

She remained at the organ long after services. She felt that somewhere in the church Jack was waiting for her and she would let him wait. But when a half hour had passed, she put on her coat, drew on her long gloves and left the church. He was nowhere about. Could it possibly be that he would ignore her that way? Had he deliberately gone off with never even an effort to see her? She was enraged. Back of her eyes the blood rushed in angry pulses. He had can- cased their engagement with a single short note. Surely he could not be such a beast or such a coward to let the thing drop there and avoid making further explanations to her.

She hurried down the steps and walked hastily. If Jack and the East- erners were coming, she was going. Nor did she realize where she was until the steeply turned road began. Then suddenly she realized with a peculiar sense of shame, like that of people in dream when they suddenly find themselves taken in some public place that she was walking directly towards the Reeves house. They lived down the dirt road about two miles from where she now stood. On the left was a deep ravine. There were two cuts leading off the road and down the side of the hill as if some heavy vehicle had gone over. Joan her curiosity aroused ran on a few yards to see what had happened. She saw a sharp cry when on looking down she saw the turned over body of an automobile. Quickly she ran to the nearest house and phoned the hospital and the local garage man. Almost immediately the ambulance and truck arrived. The men had difficulty in getting down the slope because of the wet, slippery mud and even more difficulty, after they had turned over the car and had taken out the two persons pinned underneath in carrying them up to the road.

Joan was waiting at the top of the hill. "Anyone hurt very badly?" she inquired with anxiety.

The lady's pretty head but it doesn't look like anything serious, she was told.

The two figures were placed on stretchers and lifted into the ambulance. When Joan saw their faces she gasped and herself got into the car to drive to the hospital.

She was sitting by a little white iron bed rubbing the pulse of a rather light-complexioned young man it lay unconscious under the white sheet when suddenly he opened his eyes. He stared at her for several minutes in half recognition then his eyes opened wide like two large saucers. "Joan Joan dear old Joan so glad you're here." He closed his eyes again. Joan smoothed his pillow and leaned over tenderly to kiss his white forehead.

"Oh Jack don't, don't go to sleep again," she coaxed. He opened his eyes and smiled happily.

"I want to, Joan, so you will kiss me again. You are affectionate, aren't you? That—that's why I wrote that miserable note. I was afraid that you were like me and that you didn't really love me." His voice became weaker, and his eyes slowly closed. But on his lips the smile remained.

Several weeks later little Elsie sang under the steps of the Martin home. "Oh, I like Miss Martin. I like Miss Martin," she was saying, and in her mind she was going over the scene of the last five minutes. Joan had taken her lovingly in her arms. "Dear you must keep up your music even if I can't teach you any more. And if you ever come to Crawford you must look up Mrs. Jack Reeves. Mrs. Jack Reeves, you won't forget! Because that will be my name after tomorrow." And Elsie thought she would never forget how very beautiful she looked when she said it.

She walked down the street with her head high. People spoke to her with a little more than the respect she always commanded. There were frank admiration in their glances for this tall, stunning girl in the tailored blue suit. Joan was not unconscious of the effect she produced and it pleased her enormously. The sidewalks were still wet from the rain of the night before, and splattered with fresh red mud, washed down in little gullies from the lawns. An Easter Sermon
Power of Life Eternal

By S. J. Duncan Clark

THE season of the resurrection does not pass unmarked. It is a time when the minds and hearts of men are turned to dwell upon a fact which no nation succeeded in explaining away.

Faith may differ over whether the reported resurrection experiences of the followers of Jesus were objective or subjective but history records beyond effective contradiction the compelling and transforming result upon life and character of those experiences. Whatever doubt may be held as to whether the men and women who testified to seeing the risen Christ looked with the eyes of the body upon an actual physical manifestation of their Master there can be no doubt as to the certainty of their conviction that He whom they had seen taken from the cross whose body had been laid in Joseph's tomb survived as a real and living presence in their midst.

This faith brought together the frightened and dejected group of disciples in the spirit of confident rejoicing, it carried them through arduous labor and bitter persecution; it won to them increasing adherents; it triumphed over every difficulty over all opposition. It became the power of the life eternal, giving new significance to all life, new meaning to all the seasons they learned from the Master's lips.

We may build this faith upon the empty tomb but to fact, it had deeper foundation than that. It went back behind the tomb and the cross to the living Christ as they had known Him. Everything that they had seen of Him and heard of Him made it reasonable, made it logical, made it, in a sense, verifiable. He had lived in the power of the life eternal. It was inconceivable that the beauty, the goodness and the truth which found embodiment in Him could perish; that the personality which they expressed could be less than forever enduring. The existence of these values—inseparable from personality—was essential to the understanding of life as anything more than a purposeless tragedy, a futile breath in a chaotic and meaningless world.

To have known Jesus was to have known that there is a spiritual reality which transcends the material and the temporal. This consciousness had been quickened in the souls of His followers. The furious hatred of His foes, the brutal cross of Roman power, the sealed tomb—these were the evanescent illusions whereby it was stupidly sought to destroy the eternal reality of His love, His wisdom. His soaring faith in God. And the effort had failed. How could it be otherwise? How can it ever be otherwise?

And the meaning of His life was just this—the reality in the life of all men is the possibility of becoming like Him, of expressing beauty and goodness and truth, of living now and always in the power of the life eternal. To him who has seen this possibility, faith in the continuity of life, in the persistence of personality comes naturally and will not permit of contradiction, to him death is merely an incident—not even an interruption—it is a step in the process of escape from the shadows of illusion into the full light of reality. It is rebirth of forces and rebirth in the glory of hope.

The effect of such a faith and such a hope is seen in the story of the early church; a story marked by and deeply intensified interest in the supreme importance of human values by the flaming of a splendid spiritual idealism against the background of a world given over to the flesh by the immediate broadening of sympathies in a race of narrow prejudices to ever whole and submerge the ingrained prejudices of tradition and foster religious training by the emphasis upon justice and brotherhood in human relations upon character and unselfish services. Men and women began to live the life eternal, personality was appraised in terms of the enduring and the things of time and change fell back into their proper subordinate places.

It is a revival of that resurrection faith which the world needs today a faith in the reality of the continuing life and the things which belong to it. Nothing else can save us from the perverted sense of values which comes from the fading pursuit of illusion, from the vain struggle for the things which cannot satisfy.

The vital message of this Easter season is the call to every man to live in the light and power of the life eternal, and the assurance that to every man such a life is possible. To find it requires those who have the courage to follow where He leads may know the joy and when the world accepts His leadership it will find both right conduct and peace—those treasures it can never find while it gropes amid the shadows of its passing pride and pomp.

Reason Calls Suffice.
"You make life a burden to me," said the busy man to the persistent life insurance agent.
"In that case you can't take out this policy any more."

EARLY SPRINGTIME DESSERTS

To stimulate the appetite and furnish mineral matter and acids which the system craves and needs at the season, fresh fruits and vegetables are invaluable.

Double boiler until scalding hot. Add two tablespoonsful of cornstarch which has been mixed with one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, and one-third of a cupful of sugar, then add one-fourth of a cupful of cream. Cook thirty minutes, stirring occasionally. Add the well beaten yolks of two eggs, return to the boiler and stir, cooking until smooth and thick; using care not to over cook and curdle the eggs. Add a teaspoonful of orange extract and put in a cool place.

Put sponge cake into slices and arrange in a glass dish in layers with sliced bananas, having a bottom layer of cake and the top of bananas. Pour over the chilled custard, cover with a meringue, using the egg whites and two tablespoonsful of powdered sugar. Flavor with lemon extract and keep spoonfuls on top of the custard.

Cherry Sherbet—Take one cupful of stoned cherries, two and one-half cupfuls of water, one-half cupful of sugar and one tablespoonful of soft-ened gelatin. Heat the cherries, water and sugar, add the gelatin, cool and add the juice of an orange. Freeze to a mush and pack in salt and ice. Serve in sherbet glasses.

Pineapple Rice—Cook one-half cupful of rice in two quarts of boiling salted water until tender, but unbroken. Drain, blanch with cold water. Cut two cupfuls of sliced pineapple into small pieces. Beat one cupful of heavy cream until stiff. Fold the cream and pineapple into the rice. Serve in sherbet cups with bits of cherries for a garnish or fresh, sugared strawberries.

Plain boiled rice to which a little pineapple juice and gelatin has been added and the rice molded, makes a delightful dessert with a crushed strawberry sauce.

Full House Greet
"Hunchback" at the Soisson Theatre

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame" was given its initial showings at the Soisson Theatre yesterday to packed houses. It will be the attraction today, Wednesday and Thursday.

In producing "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," Carl Laemmle believed it would be like the book, a work of creative art with the permanence of the ancient cathedral itself and a picture for all days to come. He expected Victor Hugo's immortal classic to be the crowning achievement of the screen and in every way his anticipations have been realized.

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame" is a cinematographic masterpiece in the truest sense of the word. The sets, which include representation of the Cathedral of Notre Dame, the Court of Miracles, Place de Paris, the Palais de Justice, the Bastille, and many streets of Paris of the period of Louis XI, are gems of mingled beauty, magnificence, quaintness, and above all genuine replicas of a historic city whose greatness is thus conveyed forever on the silver sheet—the new art of the present, and of the future.

The screening of such an intricate story as this was a huge undertaking, especially when a physical production perfect to the last detail is in question. For so great a motion picture the industry and the audience should be equally grateful to Carl Laemmle. But aside from the production itself, never before has such a remarkable individual performance been given as that of Lon Chaney, Jr. in the stellar role of Quasimodo, the deformed bell-ringer of the Cathedral of Notre Dame. Mr. Chaney, known for years as "the man of a thousand faces," outdoes himself in this vivid impersonation.

It is to be said that he gave a splendid performance. His "Quasimodo" is such a real recreation of the original that all we can say is—open a volume of Victor Hugo's "Notre Dame de Paris," read the minute description of the poor hunchback and see if you don't feel that no one could possibly be such a character—then go see this production and find "Quasimodo" come to life. He is not only physically, but psychologically, it is as though the living man was before us, and not an actor. Never did an actor more completely merge his identity in a role, or make his audience more fully see sight of the individual.

Others in the cast are Patsy Ruth Miller, excellent in the role of Esmeralda; Ernest Terrence, as Clopin; King of the Rats, as the Astor Theatre; Harry, as the dancing Captain Phoebus; Tully Marshall, as Louis XI; Nigel de Bruin, as Dom Claude; Brandon Hurst, as Jehan; Raymond Hatton, and a score of others, lack of space precluding mention of all. The advance notices stated there were 75 noted principals and a supporting cast of some 3,000 extras, and after you see the picture you will agree that for once press-agents have stuck strictly to fact.

Probably no picture has ever been made that is 100 per cent perfect, but here is one that is as close to perfection as anything that has ever been made, and this reviewer will go so far as to predict—that ever will be made.

In writing this review I have a copy of the criticism written by Don Allen of the New York World, following the world premiere of the picture in New York City, lying in front of me, and I feel that I hardly can do better than to quote what he has to say:

"That the picture is here. We have seen scores of million dollar pictures and never before felt that one was worthy of the amount claimed to have been expended thereon, but in our estimation 'The Hunchback of Notre Dame' is a bargain at any price. The screen picture has long enabled her to carry on a clandestine romance with a man whom her aunt has forbidden her to see. A mix-up in her heart's history results. 'Her Majesty' continues comedy, drama and romance again. Mollie King plays both 'Hers'.

Hard Work Done the Easy Way

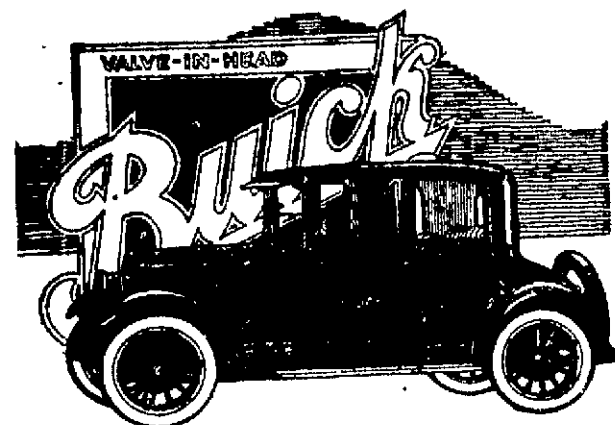

American invention and enterprise have done much to take the hard toil and drudgery out of house work, as well as to provide many conveniences that add to the comfort and happiness of the home. Most all the hard tasks of housekeeping can be avoided or made far less arduous by modern appliances. To lighten the burden is to provide more opportunity for enjoying life.

Here are only a few of the items that are now almost indispensable in many homes:

- Vacuum Sweepers
- Washing Machines—Electric or Water Power
- Electric Irons
- Gas Irons
- Sewing Machines—with or without motor
- Bread Mixers
- Pileless Cookers
- Kitchen Cabinets
- Modern Stoves
- A host of kitchen and household utensils

Our stores can supply anything in the above lines. Ask one of our salesmen about them. The cost of this modern equipment, we believe, is less than you realize.

Simple Home Treatment for Sore Throat

Raw, Sore, Inflamed Throats Can Be Greatly Relieved By Use of this Vaporizing Salve.

Here is a simple yet effective method to treat a sore throat. Gargle with warm salt water three times daily. Also swallow slowly every few hours a teaspoonful of Vicks.

At night apply Vicks over the throat and upper chest, rubbing well in. Then spread on thickly and cover with a warm flannel cloth.

The body heat releases the ingredients—Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Juniper Tar, etc.—in the form of vapors, and these vapors, inhaled all night long, go directly to the affected parts.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed thru and stimulates the skin like a liniment or plaster, drawing out the soreness and pain.

Vicks is equally good for hoarseness, influenza, head and chest colds and for the croupy colds of children.

The second sister keeps the deception for this situation enables her to carry on a clandestine romance with a man whom her aunt has forbidden her to see. A mix-up in her heart's history results. New Gold Strikes in Madagascar and Alaska

Alaska a few days ago announced a new gold strike and hardly had that been made public before similar news came from a far more distant section of the globe, the town of Ankililaha in the Antsavelo river region of Madagascar. High hopes have been aroused by the latest discovery, as an extremely rich vein was uncovered in that vicinity twenty-two years ago.

Since that time extensive mining operations have been carried on, principally by a private company of Lyons, France, under concession from the government of Madagascar. French authorities, after its experience in the earlier gold rush, does not encourage the individual prospector who depends on a new gold field with little else than his tent and pick and is apt to prove an unmanageable, erratic character, but leans rather to favoring the chartered company. Big fortunes were made in Madagascar's earlier gold rushes, but gradually the vein along the Mozambique coast to the west became worked out and little had been heard of it until the word of the recent strike, says the New York Times.

The prevalence of rich ore in Madagascar has made mining one of its chief activities. In addition to gold there are valuable deposits of rubies and beryl, and veins of mica, graphite and uranium—the latter producing electricity to be used, together with many other ores. Along the seaboard pearl diving has brought in considerable profits.

A FEW REASONS Why You Should Wear BOSLET TAILOR-MADE CLOTHES

Reason 1—My strongest argument is economy. Do not let yourself be misled by the first price of an article but consider the upkeep. Boslet tailored clothes wear longer, hold their shape better and have more style than the inferior ready-made or made-to-measure clothes.

Reason 2—Ready-made clothes are made to fit lifeless dummies—not real men. Do not allow yourself to be deceived by some inexperienced person telling you that you are easy to fit in a ready-made suit. The man who is easy to fit does not exist. We all have some peculiarity in our physical makeup. With one it is a high or low shoulder, with another a slight difference in the length of his arms, a difference in posture and many other irregularities with which the skilled tailor only is acquainted. Boslet tailored clothes will overcome all these difficulties for you.

Reason 3—Another strong argument for tailor-made clothes is the wide selection of the best woolsens, manufactured in this and foreign countries, offered to the prospective buyer. A range of eight hundred different patterns, awaits your early inspection and there is still sufficient time to have your suit finished for Easter.

Reason 4—We suggest what is best in style, but the customer is really his own designer. Every man is entitled to his own opinion and we endeavor to satisfy even the slightest wishes of our customer in tailoring his garments.

Drop in today and let me prove to you that these reasons are facts—not idle talk. A trial will convince you. Suits $10 up.

ANCIENT RUINS NOW ACCESSIBLE

Indian Reservation in Arizona Easily Reached.

Among numerous national monuments being established in the Navajo reservation, which will serve, along with others, to reserve to the people of the United States historic landmarks, says the Department of the Interior at Washington.

The Navajo National monument is within the great and little-known Navajo Indian reservation in northeastern Arizona. It comprises three separate tracts of land, each of which contains the ruins of a remarkable prehistoric cave, pueblo or cliff dwelling in a good state of preservation. These are known as Betatakin (the Navajo name of ancient house), Kitali (meaning broken pottery) and Inscription house.

The latter ruin derives its name from an inscription scratched into the clay plaster of a wall. It reads: "Shaparo And Dene 1901." An intrepid early Spanish explorer or priest, probably on his way to or from the Colorado river, must have entered the canyon and paused at the then long abandoned pueblo to scratch a record of his visit. It was not visited again until June, 1900.

Village Had 120 Rooms.
Betatakin is situated at an elevation of 7,000 feet, in a great cave, 400 feet long, with a maximum depth of 100 feet, in the side of a soft red sandstone cliff, which forms the walls of a most picturesque and beautiful canyon. The cave roof projects far out over the village, which originally contained 120 rooms and occupied every foot of building space. Within the cave is a never-failing spring of excellent water. The gorge below is filled with tall pines, alder and birch, while the opposite slope is studied with pine.

Kitali is the largest of the cave pueblos and is appropriately named, as the open spaces between the apartments are strewn with broken pottery of the finest type produced by the ancient cliff dwellers. The village fills a cave 300 feet long and 50 feet deep. There are 146 rooms. Several circular ceremonial chambers or kivas at the front of the cave and below the level of its floor indicate the tribe occupying it was different from the clan that lived at Betatakin, as in the latter are no rooms of this type.

Kitali is situated in a wooded canyon on the walls of which are warm, colored. The rich greens of the foliage and bright flowers create a picturesque setting in an atmosphere of peace and simplicity.

Access Fairly Easy.
The Navajo monument is reached from Flagstaff, Ariz., on the Santa Fe railroad and National Old Trails road by a fair dirt road running northeastward and crossing the Little Colorado river on a suspension bridge into the Navajo Indian reservation. Just before the bridge crossing a new road from the left comes from Grand Canyon National park, which is also a point of departure. Tuba City is 80 miles from Flagstaff and about the same distance from Grand Canyon village. Sixty-five miles farther takes one to Marsh pass and 18 miles farther to Kinsanta, a post office and trading post, which is an excellent point for the saddle and pack horse trip to the monument.

John Wetherill of Kinsanta is custodian of the monument and a reliable outfitter. Indian guides are engaged for the trip. The Betatakin ruins is eight miles north of Marsh pass. Kitali is about seven miles from Betatakin, and Inscription house about forty miles to the west of Kitali and Nitali canyon.

Route is formed by a series of deep cut canyons, the courses of which zigzag in every direction like the tentacles of some huge devilfish, their rounded points and sides shimmering in the sunlight as though pulsating with life.

Girls Adopt Uniform in Spirit of Democracy

Heartaches among students at the South Philadelphia high school for girls because of the vagaries of Dame Fashion have been banished by the adoption by school authorities of a uniform dress for students.

Although wearing of the dress is voluntary, a large number of girls have already ordered the garb, and the sentiment that the uniform is a proper manifestation of school spirit is reported spreading among the rest of the student body.

The uniform is the outgrowth of a self-government plan. An open forum on "School Spirit and School Problems" recently led to discussion of dress, in which parents of the girls participated. The uniform was favored by all present.

The costume comprises a dark blue jumper with the school monogram embroidered in gray silk, white tailored waist, sport shoes and stockings. The cost is said to be $10.

COOLIDGE PORTRAITS DONE BY CHRISTY.

Here's the Situation

The management of any well-conducted telephone company must do these things:

1. Render high-grade telephone service.
2. Pay all bills incurred in rendering the service.
3. Pay wages which attract and hold the type of employees necessary to render good service.
4. Pay our interest charges and an adequate return to the stockholders whose investment has made the business possible.
5. Take care of the demands for new service when and where asked for, as lies within its power.
6. By sound management, and adequate earnings, attract the new capital necessary to finance the new construction which is needed to meet the demands for new service.

At the present time our earnings are not sufficient to meet all these obligations.

The $173,000,000 construction program which lies ahead of us during the next five years cannot be financed unless, by a revision of telephone rates, our financial condition and standing can be kept sound.

We must come to you for the new capital. We must pay you adequately for its use, and this we cannot do without adequate earnings.

LARGE GATHERING AT INSTITUTE AT FLATWOODS CHURCH

That interest is not lagging in the old-time teachers' institute was evidenced by the audience that greeted speakers at that held Saturday at Flatwoods Baptist Church by the teachers of Franklin township. In the afternoon there were over 300 in attendance.

The morning session was opened by the pastor of the church, Rev. A. A. Blake, who spoke briefly on the meaning and value of service, read from the Scriptures and offered prayer. The speakers at the morning session were James G. Robinson, assistant county superintendent, whose subject was "The United States," and R. K. Smith, superintendent of the schools of Dunbar township, who discussed "Service." Entertainment was provided by pupils of the Unity School of which Miss Grace Byers is teacher. They gave a number of readings.

Two hundred fifty persons ate dinner in Grange Hall, the meal being provided by women of the community. In the afternoon there was music by male quartet in charge of C. C. Collins; instrumental music by Joe, Tony and Dorothy Sant; a play by children of the Buena Vista school, under the direction of Miss Hazel Lewis, the teacher; readings by Paul Allen and Elizabeth Robinson.

The addresses of the afternoon were by J. T. King of Smithfield and C. H. Cuppet of Washington township. Mr. King's theme was "Character," that of Mr. Cuppet, "Citizenship."

R. B. Barner, township supervisor, presided.

Rebuilding a Power System in 72 Hours

DURING the recent storm (the worst this county has known in years) hundreds of our men worked day and night in order to restore service. With hundreds of miles of power lines throughout the Coke Region subjected to the strain of this disastrous weather, it took volumes for the sturdy character of our equipment that any of it withstood this violence.

As it was we were forced to rebuild many miles of power lines in a very short time. This sounds like an impossible task. But it was done. Not only that but within 72 hours Railway communication and Power Service was reestablished throughout the Coke Region.

The credit for the accomplishment of this task goes to our employees whose unfailing loyalty and untiring service made possible an apparently impossible task.

I quit climbing now, and then but didn't get out much on account of the awful cramps, gas and indigestion attacks. My tongue was coated all the time. I now my breath was bad, but though I tried a lot of remedies nothing did me any good. I was going down hill fast. Finally I started taking this wonderful stuff called Sulac and three bottles gave me a new lease on life. It's a real honest to goodness medicine and I feel one hundred percent fine. I feel better than I have in four years and am weighing about 150 pounds, working every day and enjoying big meals, work and recreation like I wish. NEW POWDER FROM ITALY MAKES RHEUMATIC PAINS GO QUICKLY

No Medicines to Take Internally. A Startling New Method of Treatment.

The well-known Italian physician, Alessandro Volta, for whom the electric volt has been named, has made a scientific discovery that promises to make rheumatic pain a thing of the past for the thousands who have suffered its terrible tortures.

He compounded a powder called Volta that is claimed to be a powerful and active uric acid solvent. It is not taken internally but is taken into the shoes or stockings and is absorbed through the pores in the soles of the feet. It is intended to be absorbed almost immediately into the blood and this is done so that the feet will then be the source of the first current over ten times the number of pores to the square inch as does any other part of the body.

No remarkable and rapid have been the results from the use of Volta powder, both in this country and in Italy, that the American distributors have authorized local druggists to dispense Volta with an unconditional guarantee of relief from the use of the very first package of your money will be refunded.

If you suffer from rheumatic pains, swollen, lame joints, heat or burning, you can be relieved by trying this remarkable new scientific treatment. It is absolutely harmless and does not cause any harm if you do not receive wonderful relief.

You can get a box of Volta from such good druggists as Connelville Drug Co., C. D. Hartzel, Daugherty Drug Co.—Advertisement.

"What has become of that bad curve just outside of Frankville?"

"The town did away with it!"

"A good idea."

"Yes, it was cheaper to do that than to build a hospital!"

In the Light of our Knowledge-

Cavemen's Dread of Darkness Gives Way at Last Before Inventive Genius—Search for Portable Light Rewarded in the End.

THESE were once a time when strong men were as terrified by darkness as the most timid of Nineteenth Century spinsters. Brown savages went scurrying for home like so many children at the first cool breath of evening.

"Be sure, George," said the wife of these days, "be sure to get home before dark." Reason enough for that advice. If George didn't arrive by dark, the chances were he never would at all.

For these were the barbarous days of the savages, when depending darkness stalked the creeping out of more wild animals to the square table than there are today in the Zoo. And such animals! No wonder George came home before dark. All the common bears, lions, catamounts, laughing hyenas, wild horses and wolves were there, and in addition, woolly mammoths, sabre-tooth tigers, giant horned lizards and snakes as big around as a trunk line saw.

The foolhardy cavemen who stayed out after dark became just so much fresh meat the moment he stepped forth into the night.

All this inconvenience was caused by the fact that man had been trifling away his time through the earlier ages without ever thinking how comfortable it would be to have a fire and a light. This was a mystery to those early men as to the average wife of today when the furnace goes out.

building of a fire was just as much of a mystery to those early men as to the average wife of today when the furnace goes out.

Home Run Every Night

OF late afternoons the vaunted caveman was accustomed to calculate, as best he could with his four-year-old mind, the distance back to the old cave. With the lengthening shadows his courage slowly ebb away, while in the adjacent thickets, as he well knew, the woolly mammoths were wondering whether they would have Homo Erectus for dinner.

After some thousands of years, Homo Sapiens discovered that he could build a fire. For widespread consequences this outwits any of mankind's later achievements. These early fires, however, were not the simple, push-button affairs of the present day.

Caveman Builds a Fire

First of all, your pioneer heating engineer made a trip to the flint mine and brought back a fresh flint. Then away he went in another direction and returned with a chunk of iron pyrites. Thus equipped, he was ready to begin work in a serious way. This consisted in hitting the block of pyrites with the flint and waiting for a spark. It was not unlike the modern sport of hand-cracking a nut on a zero morning. The more expert in the art sometimes struck a spark at the ninety-first try. In theory the spark which at once ignited the dry leaves which were packed about the pyrites. Eventually a hesitant flame did appear among the leaves.

Mammoths Fear the Light

It can be readily seen that once such a fire was set going no one willingly let it die from neglect.

Not for its heat was the fire valued, but because men early made the discovery that the wild animals were afraid of the light. The value of his discovery can hardly be exaggerated. It was now possible to build a cozy fire by the cave entrance and go to bed in safety. Hungry animals might gather outside the cave and gnaw their teeth in disappointment, but none dared approach the fire. It soon became clear that a fire would light the cave and intimidate wild animals; then such a fire transported through the darkness would light a path at night which man might travel, and keep off marauding carnivores along the way. But how to carry the fire? Small sticks carried out into the night business promptly blew out and dreaded darkness closed down about the hopeful experimenters.

Finally the best minds of that day solved the problem with ingenious knots which they lit at the tribal hearth. The indurated wood burned brightly even in a strong wind, and with an array of fresh knots for re-lighting on the way, a man might travel several miles through the darkness. The distance, of course, was strictly limited by the size of the hearth and the number of knots he could carry.

First "Link Boys" Appear

Tribe warriors found their newly discovered ability to illuminate the darkness a great help in stalking animals for food. However, since the hunter could not well sport his quarry with one hand while holding a light in the other, he usually took along a companion or two who walked beside him carrying the torches.

Thus originated the "link boys" who for thousands of years thereafter walked beside the traveler lighting his way at night. The name, of course, was not applied until many centuries later, during the Middle Ages, when the work of the link boys had become an important industry.

For as civilization developed, man's need of a portable light increased steadily. Nevertheless, for thousands of years there was almost no improvement in the implements of night travel. Pine knots and dried rushes held the honors up through the ages until relatively recent times.

Then Colonel Drake struck oil near Olean, N. Y., and the kerosene lantern, of current memory, made its appearance. It was convenient and required frequent refilling, but for exploring the barrens or lighting a path at night it was far ahead of pitch farms and candle lanterns.

Electricity Opens New Era

The harnessing of electrical energy for lighting literally opened up new vistas in mankind's way of living after dark. Yet for many years after electricity was put to work an incandescent bulb was useless unless attached to a wire from the generating station. The problem of storing electricity for use as needed finally found practical solution in the invention of the dry battery, which had been developing gradually since the experiments of Volta in the Eighteenth Century.

Dry Cell Starts Career

During the first years of its life the dry cell gave promise of a great future by lighting doorbells and performing other useful tasks, which it still continues to do. Finally an engineer in New York conceived the idea of using it to make a portable light.

Up to that time the dry batteries were all of the large size in use today for ignition and ball wiring. One of the first problems was to devise a battery which would be small enough to carry conveniently while delivering the considerable current required by the incandescent bulb. When this aspect and weight problem was finally solved, the engineers approached lamp manufacturers and asked for a small bulb which would fit the new battery.

But the manufacturers threw up their hands. They declared such a bulb was impossible to build. It would not throw enough light. Manufacturing difficulties stood in the way. Finally they finally refused to have anything to do with it.

Age Long Search Rewarded

But the inventor and his associates persisted. They themselves designed the lamp they needed. One memorable day they attached the new lamp to the recently completed portable battery. The bulb glowed and shone in the darkness. Mankind was now released from the unworldly burdens of pine knot torch, candle and lantern.

For from the days when the savages first warmed at night on the hills of Europe, lighting their way with flaming torches, mankind had striven always to find a reliable means of portable illumination during the hours of darkness. With the invention of the electric flashlight the yearnings of centuries were ended. An eight-ounce cylinder, stowed away in a convenient pocket, at the touch of a finger shoots a beam of white light through the deepest gloom. Carrying the flashlight man walks in safety through the night, warding off, not the wild animals of ancestral dread, but the thousand inconspicuous and modern dangers of darkness.
